Was the Resurrection Fact?

(Contributed by a reader)

The above interrogation may be considered an important one. Yet it is one that is the concern of many learned theologians. Only last year an aged divine, of outstanding importance, propounded to his ministerial confreres, five pointed questions which were: "First, What is the resurrection? Second, What becomes of the natural, physical body of man or woman? What are the conditions of life after death? Third, Does the mind, power, soul or ego, use and control the natural, physical body after death? Fourth, What are the conditions of the suckling or pre-maturely born child at so-called death, its future life, home, care, and progress? For, who accept the statements in the Bible to be literally or figuratively true?"

Replying, our minister said: "To the first four questions of your questionnaire, I am unable to reply, I do not know." Another said: "I do not believe that the spirit, soul mind or ego, again uses and controls the body. As to the conditions of the pre-maturely born child at death, its future, etc., I cannot say." Another replied: "Your questions would stump all the scientists, philosophers and theologians put together. No man knows the answer. I can only guess, that the body disintegrates with its constituents and joins its individuality forever."

My limited space will not permit me to consider other than question Three, together with the humiliating answer given thereto.

While the literature of continental Asia—the story volumes of Egypt—the sagas of Greece and Rome—the philosophies of Plato, Lincolin, Cicero, Anaximander, Plutarch, Anaxagoras, Xenophanes, and others of their class—the writings of the Scandinavian sagas—the oratory, mythology and history of all times—including even the weird mysticism of Madame Blavatsky, together with the epics of the race, voice in one acclamation man's belief in the immortality of the soul after death; still it was left for Jesus Christ, and the prophets that preceded and succeeded Him, to teach that the soul's immortality was contingent to a tangible resurrection, or resending of the body and spirit after death.

It is lamentable that oriental thought has deluged some Christian denominations, so called, to the extent that their conception of the future state of man would have him dissolved into some mystical "cosmos," essence, world-soul, or what not, compatible with the "Ili" of Parmenides; the "Moksha" of Brahminism; "Nirvana" of Buddhism; "Pleroma" of Gnosticism; the "Anima-Mundi" of the Stoics; the "Logos" of Gnosticism or the thought expressed in the "Tao-te-ching" that "emptiness is the only reality of existence."

Unhesitatingly I aver that resurrection implies a tangible restoration of spirit and body, irrespective of any process of disintegration or dissolution of the body to its component parts, that might take place. And moreover, that each son and daughter of Adam belongs to this earth, and will inhabit it after he has been resurrected, even as the inhabitants of distant worlds belong to the planet on which they were born in mortality, and will ever dwell therein.

No sanguine of his resurrection and eternal life on this earth was the prophet Job, that he wrote: "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at a latter day upon the earth: And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh I will see God: Whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold and not another: though my reins be consumed within me." (Job 19:25-27)

To Ezekiel, the Lord showed a vivid panorama of the literal resurrection, and while many Christian ministers have endeavored to spiritualize the text out of its rational meaning, I am willing to take the Lord's own version of the vision, which reads: "Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold they say as our bones are dried, and our hope is lost, and we are cut off from our parts. Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, and shall have put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the Lord have spoken it, and it performed it saith the Lord" (Ezek. 37:1-14).

Equally sanguine of a tangible resurrection was Isaiah, that he wrote: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise." (Isa. 26:19)

The epoch of millennial history arrived when Jesus Christ came to earth to make His great Mediation and establish the literal resurrection. While still on earth He said: "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth: they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." (Jno. 5:28-29)

He went to Golgotha—suffered crucifixion—rose from the tomb a tangible being and, to convince His disciples of its fact, said: "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself, handle me and see, for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have. And when he had thus spoken he showed them his hands and feet. And while they yet believed not for joy and wonder, he said unto them: Have ye any meat? And he gave him a piece of broiled fish and of an eel's comb. And he took it and ate before them." (Luke 24:38-43)

To convince doubting Thomas of this literality, he had him feel the wounds in His hands, feet and sides. (Jno. 20:24-29)

As literal a resurrection as that of Christ, was promised to the people, and just that literal was its application and realization, subsequent to His resurrection: "And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of their graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many." (Matt. 28:52-54)

Paul adds his testimony to that of Matthew in the following: "Women received their dead raised to life again; and others were tortured not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection." (Heb. 11:35). The Apostles were fearless in declaring the resurrection in Christ's day, also the resurrection yet future. Speaking to Agrippa, Paul said: "Why should it be thought of this incredible with you, that God should raise from the dead? Forasmuch as the Corinthians denied the resurrection and Paul devotes an entire chapter to proving its fact. One of his arguments was: "Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? Why are they then baptized for the dead?" (1 Cor. 15:29) In his vision John saw the resurrection of all humanity, and wrote: "And the dead were judged every man according to his works, and the sea gave up its dead which were in it, and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every man according to his works" (Rev. 20:13).

Christ taught that the resurrection was for the wicked as well as the righteous. (Jno. 5:27-28) As did also Paul (Acts 24:15). The universal aspect of it was as sweeping as the Atonement (1 Cor. 15:22).

"Within fifty days the evidence of the resurrection," writes Professor Palmer of New York, "were proclaimed in the most public manner, but the Jewish enemies of Christ, who were determined to stamp out the new doctrine, do not seem to have ever brought the charge against the apostles, even in their most unscrupulous attacks. The only logical conclusion is for us to say that the case of the supernatural birth and resurrection of Jesus Christ as facts is absolutely closed against all positive evidence in proof of their scientific impossibility." (Supernatural Revealed by Nature pp. 30, 40).

The fundamental elements of each human body belong to that individual entity, and will never enter into the composition of any other organism. Through the power of the resurrection in the Lord Jesus Christ those will be brought together, even though they have been mixed with the elements for thousands of years. And that just as literally as the Lord explained to Ezekiel "The elementary principles of this good" the resurrection of natural philosophy is somewhat understood to modern chemistry and physics.

I reaffirm that resurrection is literal in the fullest sense of the word, to the extent that a man in mortality, could shake hands with a resurrected being and each feel the other's hand, just as literally as the apostles could handle those wounded hands, feet and side, and Christ could sense their touch. Moreover any Christian denomination that eliminates from its creed the literal, tangible aspect of resurrection manifestly "digs up its own root," and is scarcely worth while. The whole majestic plan of Redemption is based on resurrection, and when that is gone there remains no better hope for the immortality of the struggling soul than that offered by oriental religions.

Contributed by a Reader

Because Robert Gardiner the U.F.A. Candidate in Medicine Hat Riding, never refers to it himself, it is not generally known that it was mainly through his determined efforts that Soldiers' Lands were exempt from Taxation during the War.

In 1919 Mr. Gardiner representing Golden Plains Municipality at the Alberta Municipal Districts Association moved a resolution urging the Government to grant complete Exemption from Taxation to the Men Serving Over-Sea. His co-delegate seconded the resolution. Mr. Gardiner declared that it would be grossly unjust as the war seemed likely to continue for some time, that the soldiers who returned should be burdened with a heavy load of taxation, the Resolution was carried unanimously, the government however took no action in 1919.

In 1917 Mr. Gardiner brought the question up again at the Municipal Districts Convention, and asked Wilfred Garfield, then Minister of Municipal Affairs, to explain why nothing had been done, the minister was evasive, he thought the memorandum covered the case, Mr. Gardiner however, insisted that the memorandum, as it only postponed Payment, did not meet the case at all, that as a result of pressure, Mr. Garfield introduced legislation which exempted Soldiers' Lands up to a half a section, from all taxation.

Quite a deal has been said in this campaign by the supporters of the reactionary Ottawa government, in the hope of winning a few returned soldiers votes, hence, however, is a concrete case in which when he had nothing whatever to gain for himself by taking a stand for the soldiers interests. Mr. Gardiner fought for their rights, in view of this record, returned men will feel confident of his determined support for any plain which will assure Pensions for themselves and their Dependents.

Sensation in Britain Caused by Discovery To Harness Wave Power

According to a recent report, a new scientific discovery has been made which has caused quite a sensation in British commercial circles and may go far to compensate for the lack of water power in the British Isles. It provides for the transmission of electric power by wave pulsations, thus adding a dash to the five main methods of power, steam, direct mechanical, electric, compressed air and hydraulic. The principle is most simply illustrated by the boyish game of placing three coins touching each other in a row and then, by hitting the first, moving the third. Wave power effects the same result when it is applied to a fluid, preferably water, at one end of a conducting pipe. The initial energy is carried by the resultant waves right along the pipe's length. As it is claimed, greater efficiency and greater economy than has been possible by other methods and at the same time with absolute safety. Waves, it is stated, are today being sent through a one-inch pipe to a distance of one mile, and a plant now under construction is expected to carry very much further. Among the notable tools actually in operation are a portable wave power electric light which gives 2,400 hours a minute, and a rock drill which cuts into granite at a fourth of the cost.

It is claimed that half of wave power transmission that it can be anything and everything now being done by alternating electric currents and without the danger of explosion. The waves employed to transmit the power travel at the rate of sound in water, about a mile a second or thereabouts. The size of pipe used depends on the amount of power to be carried and the pressure, and it is interesting to learn that the pipe can be tapered at wave length or half wave lengths, thus being available for a number of machines. With wave velocity capacity of one hundred and twenty feet. So far, the most important development in the application of the new system is rotary motors now being adapted to transmission and reduction gear for marine purposes. This wave power discovery is the work of the British Air Ministry during the war to equip its airplanes and those of the Allies with means of firing two thousand bullets a minute between the propeller blades without touching the blades. The method is said to have been kept a secret by the British authorities. Out of this may come the utilization of the waves of the sea as they batter on the coast of the British Isles.

Glowing Stories

From Oilfields

Party From Fort Norman Told of Richness of District
A party of nine have reached White Horse, Y.T., from the Fort Norman oil fields with glowing stories of the richness of the area. It was learned from White Horse to Fort Norman and return was made in 60 days, including a six-day stop at Fort Norman. There were no hardships on the train, and they got back with the 35 dogs with which they started. Members of the party reported that one well 50 miles below Fort Norman was recently capped under a heavy pressure.

Fewer than 100 claims have been staked so far, it is reported. Three trading posts at Fort Norman supply the district with provisions, there being a plentiful supply of everything except coal.

Representations have been made to Ottawa to permit applications for claim records to be filed with the land agent at White Horse in order to save the long trip to the recording office in Edmonton.

A Great Police Force

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Force
In Estimation of West.

The Federal Government was wise in announcing in parliament that the mounted police, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police would be retained. The west needs the mounted police and the great work of the force is a matter more than that of the other true westerners. The eastern members of parliament can never appreciate how the Riders of the Plains have helped build the west, and Canada, and lay some of the foundations of the empire. Old timers of the west do not need to be told what the mounted police mean to Canada, and many new Canadians have appreciated the public deeds of the superb force, while others can but guess at the private work of the body that has made it almost the only known representative of law, order and justice in the far-flung outposts of this part of the British Empire. No other police force in the empire stands so high in the estimation of the law-abiding citizen as the mounted police. No other body of police is such a terror to the evildoer; the pride of the mounted police is their clean, straight, grave faces that had to be done, it justified. The swivel-chair of the east can never realize that the mounted police, that clean in line at their ease in their chairs but the west—knows—and so do the evildoers.—From the Brandon Sun.

Germany Supplying Houses For France

Defeated Nation Going Into Portable Dwelling Buildings.

According to the Ministry of Liberated Regions, Germany will soon commence the delivery of twenty-five thousand wooden houses to be erected in the devastated zone of Northern France. This is the first step in a plan which will be somewhat similar to the portable houses seen in Canadian summer resort, camp colonies, but they will be built in solid conditions. By their it would appear that Canada reverts in sunshine. At Ottawa, for instance, in the year 1930, there were 1,200 houses, at Charlottetown, P.E.I., 1,658, at Knapton, N.S., 1,454, at Fredericton, N.B., 1,733, at Lunenburg, N.S., 1,715, at Kapuskasing, Ont., 1,670, at Brandon, Man., 2,000, at Indian Head, Sask., 1,942, at Regina, Sask., 2,355, at Lethbridge, Alta., 2,333, and at Vancouver, B.C., 2,106.

Forestry Cheaper Than Cheating Gum

Small Sum Spent For Maintenance of Branches

Canada's total expenditures on forest protection are about twice our face power bill.

"Any Canadian who may protest that the allotments of money for forest protection by any government or private interest appear excessive, let him consider some of the bills the Canadian people cheerily pay for their everyday luxuries.

We spend on face powder and perfume more than the sum paid for ice cream cones for juvenile Canadians in the province of Ontario.

The national bill for cigarettes alone is over $23,000,000, and for cigars over $12,000,000.

When any complaint is heard that the nation is paying too much for the maintenance of forestry branches, let it be considered that all such expenses rolled together barely come up to the national output for the single item of chewing gum.

An Unsinkable Plane

New Craft Is Designed For English Channel Service.

One of the latest ideas for the continental air service is an unsinkable airplane. It is being constructed by the Stage Line Aerodrome Company, Ltd., and is expected to be obtained by an inflated air balloon fitted into the rear end of the fuselage, under the tail. It is figured that the plane will keep the machine well above water level in the event of an accident. In the rear is fitted a sliding mine emergency door through which travelers would be able to escape.

The innovations do not interfere with the speed of the machine, for it will make 120 miles an hour.

Robert's Reward

Elsie—"Robert's been a good boy all week, and mother said he needs'nt come."

Every dollar spent in your home is a boost for the community.

C. P. R. Western Official

The Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Ltd., are making arrangements for handling the 1921 wool crop of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and as was not last year they have decided to operate two wool receiving warehouses, one at Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, and the other at Regina. These warehouses will be open to receive wool and sheepskins from June 1 to August 15, and upon request woolstacks and paper tissue will be sent out to contributors from the wool future. All wool should be shipped to reach the company's warehouses either at Portage la Prairie or Regina, between June 1 and August 15. The wool will be shipped in car lots from the above points in original sacks to the central warehouse at Regina. Only wool that is graded by experienced graders provided by the Dominion Livestock Branch and weighed by a Dominion Government official will be accepted. It has also been arranged that on request from the producer, an advance payment of approximately two-thirds of the market value of the wool will be paid just as soon as the wool has been graded, the wool being sold in the option of the market, as possible to obtain its market value and as soon as it is all sold, final returns will be paid to the producer. The wool will be paid over realized from the sale of the wool to the actual cost of marketing, as provided by the bylaws of the company.

Villa's Big Harvest

Former Bandit Has Changed From Destruction to Production.

Everybody interested in the prevalence of peace and prosperity in Mexico will be pleased by the statement that Francisco Villa, formerly a leader of bandits in the Southern Republic, has changed from destruction to production, and with the aid of modern farming tools is apparently achieving a success that will redound to his credit. In other words, it is good to know that Villa is now raising grain instead of making "Cinco." From the Christian-Science Monitor.

Where Age Is Respected

Turks Work As Long As They Are Capable.

Old age makes itself respected in Turkey by a capacity and willingness to work. A certain Muslim, employed as a messenger by the Turkish telegraph office, was offered his 12th year of service. He refused it, as it meant knocking off work, but his superiors insisted, he must make room for younger people who otherwise could find no work, and would have no chance to get on in life.

Murad finally agreed to quit provided his young son was taken by his place. This seemed fair and he was told to bring the son around. The son presented a white-haired man more than 70 years old.

Conservation Of Soil Is Necessary

Time Has Arrived to Give Matter Serious Consideration.

Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan, speaking at the agricultural conference at Saskatoon, said:

"It is significant that the need for conservation of our soils has been pointed out for years past by the leading agriculturists. In a report of the Experiment Farm at Indian Head in the eighties, Mr. Macfarlane states that we must look forward to the time when we shall put back into the soil some of the ingredients which were being taken out through the production of crops. We have all been so concerned with the greater production of grains, however, that nature's warnings in the form of drifting soil, have not received the attention which they deserve and I am of the opinion that the time has now come when in many sections of the older parts of the province we must give this matter serious consideration."

Their Suggestions.

An unfaithful steward had embezzled a large sum and his employers, who were anxious to know he should be dealt with.

"Get rid of him at once," advised an Englishman.

"Keep him and deduct the sum from his wages," said a Scotman.

"But," said the employer, "the sum is far greater than his wages."

"Then," said his wife, "suggest an Irishman—Till-Bits."

The Mightiest Jaws

The wood-testing Ties of the Forest Products Laboratory in Michigan is a machine designed to crush a post a foot square on an egg shell, or to exert 15 million pounds of pressure on a timber structure 30 feet high. The tremendous force can be exerted with the aid of a building settling on its wooden foundation, with the velocity of an express train crashing into a wooden trestle.

Ready To Market The Wool Clip

Warehouses Opened at Regina and Portage la Prairie.

The Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Ltd., are making arrangements for handling the 1921 wool crop of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and as was not last year they have decided to operate two wool receiving warehouses, one at Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, and the other at Regina. The wool will be paid over realized from the sale of the wool to the actual cost of marketing, as provided by the bylaws of the company.

The company on request, in addition to forwarding woolstacks and paper tissue to contributors, will also forward supplied Cooper's Dip, either powder or liquid, as desired, to their flock, the cost being deducted from the market value of the wool. All wool should be shipped to reach the company's warehouses either at Portage la Prairie or Regina, between June 1 and August 15. ## Increase In Dairy Products

Valued at Half Million Dollars Over Previous Year.

Percy E. Reed, dairy commissioner for Saskatchewan, is responsible for the statement that there was an increase of 40,000 pounds in the creamery output in the province in 1920. The total value of dairy products for the year in the province was estimated at over $23,000,000, an increase of about half a million dollars over the previous year. There are now 47 creameries operating in the province, 44 of these having their butter graded by the provincial graders. Over half a million pounds more of government graded creamery butter was sold in 1920 than in the previous year.

New Administrator Is Mining Engineer

Staff Will Include Detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Announcement is made that O. S. Perry, mining engineer, has been named as the new administrator of the new oil territory on the Mackenzie River. The staff of the administrator will consist of thirty-five men, including a detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. This number will include civil servants, as well as geologists, surveyors, engineers, and all the workers necessary for the opening up of a new country and the establishment of a government.

Truth-Telling Tommy.

A woman decided to give a house party. She had recently bought a hat and was showing it to one of the visitors when her little son came in.

"So engrossed was the hostess in showing the good points of her hat that for a few minutes she did not notice the arrival of the little boy, but when she did she saw him with his hand to his mouth, as if he were laughing at her."

"Tommy," she said, "what did I buy this hat stand for?"

"For $2," retorted Tommy, "but you said I was to tell anyone."

Austrian Sells Child For $30.

General indignation has been aroused in the town of Rind, in the province of Upper Austria, by the action of George Brichler, a well-known butcher, who sold in an inn his four-year-old son to a horse dealer for 10 marks, the sum equal to about $25.

In another inn Brichler publicly offered his two other children for sale, asking the same sum for each.

This year the party paying the annual treaty to the Indians of the north will travel in a style and comfort hitherto unknown by the Indians, who make the early trip to the north. A large houseboat, constructed by the Alberta Motor Boat Works, is taking the government men down, the party travelling under the aegis of the Hudson's Bay Company.

The houseboat "H.B.C." which is conveying the party to the habitable of the Dogrib and the Slave, is resplendent in vivid green hull, red water line and white deck house with a flag-staff in the bows flanking the flag of the H.B.C. and the Red Ensign flying from the stern. The houseboat marks a new era in transportation for the northern rivers, and with the aid of airplanes at Fort Simpson, reduces the time of the voyage to the north to a comparatively brief period.

The new craft is fifty feet long, with eleven foot beam, and will draw twelve inches of water, but despite her size is comparatively light, weighing but three tons, which will make her easier of handling on the railways and portages.

She is constructed from Alberta spruce, and built by Alberta workers, and is a most modern example of marine construction. She is a credit to the builders. The "H.B.C." has on power of her own, the simply equipped lighting system, the treaty party, and will be towed down to the Arctic by the gas boat "Nechemah" of the H.B.C. fleet. The "Nechemah" is a power boat, and is equipped with 60-horsepower Buffalo engines.

Once on the northern waters, the plan to be followed will be to leave the houseboat tied up to the bank at the end of the various rivers, which flow into the Mackenzie, while the "Nechemah" will go on the rivers and the treaty party returning to the houseboat at each landing. In this way it can be reached, which might otherwise be overlooked, and it is the intention of the treaty party to get in touch with all the northern Indians possible.

With the exception of a small deck on the bow of the houseboat, the entire vessel is occupied by one long cabin, in which there are berths for the accommodation of the party, the centre being taken up by a large table, which when not in use is elevated to the roof and fastened there. The sides of the cabin are all open, with wooden shutters which can be drawn, rendering the vessel entirely private, when necessary.

In addition to the living quarters there is a gallery with cookstove, pantry and other necessities for the culinary operations. The roof of the houseboat is well covered with canvas, and any gear which is not in immediate use.

Dangers of X-Rays

X-rays, pass through brick walls and have injured many persons in buildings adjoining laboratories, members of the French Academy of Sciences have just been told by Professor Contrenouille, a radiograph expert. He advised that X-ray laboratories be completely enclosed in lead sheeting a quarter of an inch thick.

It has been found, Mr. Contrenouille said, that rays sufficiently powerful to be useful in treating cancer, have affected persons in rooms on the other side of the walls and in apartments above and below the radiograph room.

Kaiser's Peace Terms.

A document it is said to have been found in the German archives in which the former Kaiser outlined the peace terms that he intended to impose on the Allies after the war in 1917. They included an indemnity of $40,000,000,000 from the United States. And the Germans expect American troops to be sent to the reparations—Buffalo Express.

Advantage To Buy British Goods.

The new budget has made it more advantageous than ever for Canadians to buy British goods rather than those of United States manufacture," declared Capt. Evan J. Edwards, senior British trade commissioner in Canada.

Millions For Roads.

The government of Manitoba will spend $25,000,000 on the construction of roads throughout the province during this year.

A Jolt To The Wheel

By Julia Logan Archibald

It really happened. There are people who would doubt it, they would say that the American stage is too well marshalled for such occurrences. But they never knew Cary Merle. And they never knew Kanton Gray. She could not be catalogued; she was too slim—slight and fine, too elusive and rare. She was only half American. Her mother had been a great Spanish dancer, whose stage career had ended when she married a southern aristocrat. Cary danced from babyhood. Teaching her was the only outlet for her mother's genius. Darning was woven into the child's play; it was part of her mood—as natural as breathing. She herself did not dream how wonderful she was and her father's family frowned upon any trace of the mother's disappointed though glorious past.

Now she was alone, all her near relatives dead. For a year she had been struggling in New York. She had gone to managers. She was not the usual dancing type—was not in their dictionary, and they would not even give her the opportunity to show she could dance. At last one of them, calculating her dancing defect, gave her a chorus job in the beautiful fantastic opera, "The Enchanted Road."

Kanton Gray was the composer and haunted every performance and every rehearsal with his kind, though weary smile. The opera represented blood and tears, and at last the bloom of life to him. He had had a sort of tragic existence until the tremendous success of this opera, and even now was not quite happy in its production.

The company was soon to sail for a London season—at least all except Tris, the premiere dancer, who was shortly to accomplish matrimony. Kanton Gray had never been pleased with her, though technically she was perfect, but as the weeks passed and no one was found worthy to take her place, the troubled look sank deeper into his eyes.

The company adored Cary. She made you feel you were somebody else, the person you always wanted to be. Nobody was jealous of her. She never got anything definite that anybody else wanted. She just drifted, carelessly shedding light for others to look in. If men loved her, they never told her so. It was like loving an elf or a nymph—she seemed so detached, so intangible.

Kanton Gray had singled her out from the first—in an absent-minded sort of way. He used to call her to sit by him sometimes during long tramping waits. He used to tell her about her old home in Charleston, her father and mother, and his manager was always quite fatherly. Her happy chatter seemed a little stilled with him.

The orchestra leader, Leon Vallon, was a queer genius, a sort of protégé of Kanton Gray's. He and Cary were great friends.

"Why is he always so sad?" she asked one day when no name had been mentioned.

"Oh, I don't know," he said, "just the loneliness of genius, I suppose. And then he's troubled about the dancer. You see most people wouldn't understand. I don't think he understands himself, but he's put his whole ideal of love into that role—the enchaînement—and perhaps nobody will ever do it to please him—unless, perhaps—well he's always been disappointed in it perhaps."

"It's too bad," she said mistily. "He can't be happy in it—it's so beautiful, the enchanted road of life. Why, it makes me happy and I'm only a little bit of a shadowy alongside of it. Oh, if he only could!"

Then it was that the idea struck Vallon. He had often played for Cary to dance, just for the sheer joy of it and he had a dim realization that her dancing was unusual, and perhaps he had a dim realization of something else too.

But now Vallon's soul was stirred, and so it was he hatched the plot. Vallon, the producer, was to tell the next day, two weeks ahead of the company. Some English dancer would be secured—of very doubtful quality.

Vallon told Tris, who readily consented to be his accomplice. "But do you think she'll do it? Has she the nerve?" she asked as practical as a feline kitten.

When he went to Cary she looked bewildered, her lips trembling. Then she said she would.

At seven-forty that night she was dressing into a crackerjack mirror in the dressing room putting the last touch of make-up on the end of her lip-tipped nose. Later, on in front, she moved career had ended when she married a southern aristocrat. Cary danced from babyhood. Teaching her was the only outlet for her mother's genius. Darning was woven into the child's play; it was part of her mood—as natural as breathing. She herself did not dream how wonderful she was and her father's family frowned upon any trace of the mother's disappointed though glorious past.

The act was nearing the end. The spotlight turned on for Tris's dance preparatory to going off at the other side. Cary was the last of the line.

The lights were lowered and the spotlight turned on for Tris's dance but there was no Tris. (Tris could faint as casually as a Jane Austin heroine).

Tris stood stock still until she was alone on the stage.

She was pale-stricken. She could not move until she saw Vallon's face in the shadows and his hand knocking her.

She reached the spot of light in the darkness. She was all but shouting at her from the wings. Vallon's figure, in his box, shot up right in a pillar of darkness. A strange compulsion and stillness seemed to close in around her. And somewhere out in front she knew was Kanton Gray groping his way toward his own enchanted road.

Then the orchestra began to call to her, rising and falling in rhythmic tones. Her legs began to sway with the music, as lightly as a flower bends on its stem.

The spotlight followed her, the stage director became quiescent, and Cary began to dance. Her face was alight with a soft seraphic smile, and the audience held its breath.

She began in a slow swinging motion, like the rising and falling, in circles of flight of a bird, a little white night-bird all shimmering with silver-blue moonlight. Fountains of melody rose and swelled and burst in a myriad brilliant drops of ecstasy, while her little feet danced with the light exquisite patter of a fairy's foot.

Round and round she danced in widening circles. Now she became a gray-blue swirling wreath of smoke aloft in low shadowy chords of sound. It was all in the night and somewhere were the moon and stars and clouded sky, and the tinkle of fairy bells. Formless dreams floated into the hearts of those who saw and peace hung upon a young and elated world.

Her swinging grew to whirling and the whirling into swirling, until she became a mere scintillating spot, mist in a maze of color. At last, still upon her toes, with arms stretched wide, she skimmed down the whole length of the stage as the curtain went down, her head drooped and she sank into a heap before the footlights, drowned in her own glory.

They picked up the limp little form and bore it to the dressing room. The terrible storm of applause thundered madly, until the manager appeared with uplifted hand to say that Senator Capita was indisposed. If possible she would reappear during the last act, and on succeeding evenings, in one of her original dances.

It was fifteen minutes later that Cary opened her eyes and yet them sat comfortably upon Kanton Gray's face, while the orchestra played dreamily out in front. In some man's way of his he was keeping the crowd away from her. She took him quite as a matter of course, and when he paused in the chafing of her hand and smiled to see her remaining strength, she was glad he was no longer sad. She brushed back a lock of hair from his forehead, as if he had done it a hundred times before. Then she closed her eyes again.

He leaned nearer her, breathing fast. "Cary," he hurried, "Walburn will be here in a few moments with a contract for you to sign. You're the sweetest little thing that God ever made. All I want is you! That's all I ever wanted. You don't need to dance for Walburn. I can't say to you—love—"

Her eyes opened slowly. "Oh, yes," she said languidly, "I do, I have all along of course. That's why I didn't mind joggling the wheel of fate a little."

For British Preference

Reasons Why Canadians Should Buy Within the Empire.

"The new Budget has made it more advantageous than ever for Canadians to buy British goods rather than those of the United States manufacturer," declared Captain Evan J. Edwards, senior British Trade Commissioner in Canada, in a recent interview in Montreal.

"It will also be a big help to agents and business houses who prefer to do no business with the Mother Country, and within the British Empire. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance in his speech when introducing the Budget, pointed out the business with the United Kingdom continues to be satisfactory, imports from these having risen from $126,352,240 in 1917 to $134,949,946 in 1920, with the added satisfaction to Canadian buyers and consumers that their dollars are at a premium in the English market, as against a discount in the United States."

"A series of the Budget which will assist in swinging down stage charges requiring customs duty to be levied on the invoiced value of goods after taking the rate of exchange into account. As the desire of business interests throughout Canada, customs regulations during up several months ago made it compulsory for this to be done with European goods, but for certain reasons no similar requirements were made on imports from the States. The result was a considerable advantage to importers of American goods, so much so, that in many cases with a high rate of exchange it amounted to a quite substantial reduction of the protective customs tariff, and sometimes did away with the preferential tariff given to products of the Empire."

"Now American manufacturers will rank the same as those of any other country," continued Captain Edwards. "Kanton Gray's effect will be not only to encourage British trade, but to assist considerably in re-establishing the equilibrium of trade between Canada and the States, and bring back to its fair value the Canadian dollar, which is improving so slowly that it will still be only some ninety cents in the States."

"Sir Henry Drayton says—and it is clearly known to every business man, and to business, it is not necessary to remind Canadians that there are few lines of goods in which Old Country quality is not superior to that of the American article."

"With the new aids to Empire trade, derived from Sir Henry's latest Budget, a saving of often from thirty to forty per cent to the Canadian consumer can be shown by buying Empire products instead of American, and as Britishers, it is not necessary to remind Canadians that there are few lines of goods in which Old Country quality is not superior to that of the American article."

"Canada's own products can be far better supplied than they now are, by herself," insists Captain Edwards, "whereas many years' experience in big business in the Old Country and the other Dominions added authority to his statements. "More aggressive advertising campaigns by our own manufacturers, perhaps a willingness to spread present heavy overhead charges more thinly over a bigger production, and price reductions, and more reluctance on the part of Canadian buyers to be cajoled by the wiles of the American manufacturer in our midst, would all assist Canada in getting financially on her own feet."

The Home Of No Trash

BY LORETTO C. LYNCH

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

Most homes contain little or much trash. And it is not until one starts to move on housecleaning that she discovers how many useless things she is harboring.

A bride of a year came to me the other day with a confession. Said she, "This housekeeping job is not what story writers would have us believe. I work just all the time—and you simply have to work all the time if you are to keep your house in good order."

She invited me to her home of seven rooms and bath. One entire room was devoted to What Nots and other trash. It was termed "The Den." And it was laden to capacity with things from a miniature of Chopart's Needle to the proverbial, but decidedly realistic, anchor.

To make it a trashed home, it would have been necessary to get rid of nine-tenths of the ENCUMBRANCES in that Den.

But there is another type of trash hanger. It is the house in which everything of no use is relegated to the unoffending bathroom or guest (b) room or kitchen or attic. Every housewife recognizes in her heart that there is trash of some kind in her home. Why doesn't she get rid of it? For, it takes REAL courage to resist the heart throb that comes to the born hoarder when she pores with dust on old cashboxes when she makes off with the mangy hairbrush, the peeling mirror, the ruined umbrella, the headless doll, the tripe door-mat, the time-worn brass teacup and the cracked plate.

In contrast to the home cluttered with trash, let me tell you about a really beautiful home. At first you wonder why you felt such with a sense of restfulness. And soon you begin to realize that the charm of this home was due in great measure to its lack of furniture and furnishings.

As you entered, you came into the reception hall. On either side of the fireplace was a built-in bookcase. There was one large, delightfully roomy dining, a built-in window seat, a willow graminet, and you looked at the vivid Indian rug on the floor and your eye wandered over unencumbered wall space until it rested on one exquisite, soul-stirring picture.

And you just sank into a restful attitude and wished to stay long, long in this charming room.

Her home was just like a playing house for it was a trashless home.

Hollow Prison Bars

Filled With Water, Slightest Break
Would Cause Infiltration.

A new type of bars, designated for prisons are of hollow metal, filled with water. These pipes are all connected with a central pump, and the water is kept under high pressure. Thus, the slightest break in any bar would cause a powerful jet of water to spurt. To continue filling the bar would be almost impossible. Also the fact that there was a leakage somewhere would be registered on a dial on the central pump, and lead to speedy investigation.
